How do I see with 'new eyes'? How do I overcome my existing preconceptions and put aside my existing knowledge when encountering the world? "Every way of knowing becomes a way of living" (Parker Palmer). Every new perception or new insight becomes part of our way of engaging with the world. Thus is a process of transformation enacted through learning to see with new eyes, hear with new ears.

This practice-based webinar is the 6th in our ongoing study of the nature and practice of phenomenology. It continues to closely examine the act of experiencing itself. Further exercises in 'capturing yourself in the act' of experiencing are on offer, to enrich our quality of life and our professional practice.
